The Panic of 1893,
triggered by a precipitous drop in U.S. gold reserves, caused the collapse of banks and businesses nationwide.

The Alaskan goldrush pulled the Puget Sound region out of the depression in 1897, when Puget Sound ports became the departure point for the gold fields.

A European traveler's opinion of American coffee
in the 1800's:

"In the morning (Americans) deluge their stomachs
with a quart of hot wter, impregnated...so slightly with coffee that it is mere colored water..."

In the 1890's, makeup
was considered in poor taste
- or worse.
( Ladies of the night were "painted ladies.")
But improving ones appearance was as important then as now, and many women added a bit of color to cheeks or lips with ingredients from the garden, like berries or beets,
